RAF BOMBS HITLER HALL

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 9 (INS)—A stick of British aerial bombs were reported here today to have hit the Loewenbreau beer hall in Munich last night while Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler was addressing the Nazi "old guard" there.

The explosions were believed to have caused a large fire either in the hall or nearby. The bombs were dropped on the famous Nazi beer hall by British bombers during a terrific raid on Munich that was timed to coincide with the Nazi celebrations of the 17th anniversary of Hitler's abortive beer hall putsch.

Whether Hitler experienced a narrow escape from injury or whether any of his listeners were hurt was not known here, but the British fliers who participated in the raid were reported to have said they were certain one stick of bombs hit the beer hall.

While the British raid on Munich was officially supposed to be directed at the freight yards, it was common knowledge here today that the British fliers were after Hitler.

AVENGE PALACE ATTACK

The purpose of the flight in the minds of the Royal Air Force was to avenge the German bombing attacks on Buckingham Palace. Sources close to the RAF said they felt certain they had succeeded in avenging the attack on the home of their King and Queen.

The official communique of the German high command admitted today that hits were scored during the night's attack on Munich, but did not identify the targets. It also added that the attack came "sometime after" Hitler had concluded his speech.—Editor's Note.

In addition to dropping tons of high explosives and incendiary bombs, the British fliers, especially the rear gunners, were said to have thrown out bricks and derisive notes addressed to "Adolf" as they flew the general location of the beer hall.

For an hour and 36 minutes the British bombers plastered the city with high explosive and incendiary bombs.

The first squadron of British bombers arrived over Munich at 8:34 p. m. and headed directly for the area in which the Loewenbraeu beer hall was known to be located.

Wave after wave of British raiders followed this first squadron un-

CHURCHILL HAILS F. D. VICTORY

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today described velt as "a message from across the ocean of great encouragement and good cheer."

Speaking at a London luncheon, Churchill said:

"We offer our heartfelt congratulations to President Roosevelt, who has received an unprecedented mark of American confidence in being chosen for the third time to lead his mighty people forward.

"We shall now receive the support of the products of the gigantic munitions productions and the matchless workshops, furnaces and foundries of the American union.

VICTORY PROCLAIMED

"Our successful resistance and final victory have been proclaimed by all parties in America.

"But no one over here has been left in any doubt that beyond this strong material help and foundation of common interest there flows a tide of comprehension, sentiment and fierce passionate sympathy for our cause.

"We are straining every nerve to accelerate our production and I do not doubt that we shall succeed.

"The enemy is doing his utmost to cut us off from the vital supplies overseas.

"Therefore, the maintenance of our seapower is an absolute necessity to our victory.

HEROIC GREECE

"There is one small heroic country today to whom our thoughts go out in sympathy and admiration—Greece.

"To the valiant Greek people we send from the heart of London our promise to them that we will do our best to aid them in their struggle.

"We will never cease to strike at the aggressor in ever-increasing strength from this time forth.

"It is now nine months since the King and Parliament confided to me and my colleagues the grave and heavy tasks to which we have devoted ourselves.

"It is lucky we did not make any extravagant or optimistic promises. Because a succession of melancholy disasters and terrible assaults and perils have befallen us.

Churchill also referred to the campaign of Wendell L. Willkie, Republican candidate, in these words:

"We are deeply touched by the words of kindness and good will and promises of aid which were uttered by Mr. Willkie on behalf of the Republican party, which he championed so ably."

15,000 Crack Italian Troops Are Trapped, Greeks Declare

ATHENS, Nov. 9 (AP)—An entire Italian division—perhaps 15,000 men—was reported in informed quarters today to have been trapped by Greece's defenders in the Pindus mountains and its capitulation only a matter of hours.

The troops were identified as Premier Mussolini's famed Centaur division and it was said hundreds of the men, including the commanding general, had been taken prisoner.

Greek troops occupied more hills surrounding the besieged Italian base at Koritza.

The capture of the additional hills was said to have forged a strong new link in the iron ring being drawn around Koritza, which for almost a week has been pounded day and night by Greek artillery.

The capture of the prisoners, on the central front, was declared to have raised the total to more than 2500 since the 12-day-old Fascist invasion started.

The Greek high command announced that in all there were five officers among the prisoners taken during the day. In addition, it announced a number of guns and other materials fell into Greek hands.

Italian air raids were "insignificant" during the day, the communique said, with only one village bombed. One Italian raider was reported knocked down.

At the end of the first 12 days of this new war neutral experts declared the Greek positions now are as good or better than on the first day of the Fascist assault.

The action was one of a series in which Greek sources said counter-attacking mountain troops had thrown the Italian invasion machine into reverse all along the 100-mile front.

The remainder of the division, said to be without food and other supplies, was scattered throughout the mountains inside a circle formed by Greek troops. Heavy Italian guns and a large quantity of war materials were dumped into a ravine to prevent capture by the Greeks, one source said.

Military experts said the predicament of the division was due both to an Italian blunder and brilliant Greek strategy. The Italians, trying to make a lightning thrust at a strategic road running into Ioannina, went deep into the mountains. The Greeks cut the column and closed the gap in the lines, isolating the invaders.

LINER EMPRESS OF JAPAN REPORTED BOMBED BY NAZIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—A message reporting that the 26,032-ton liner Empress of Japan, former flagship of the Pacific fleet of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company, had been bombed and disabled by German planes in the North Atlantic was received today by the New York office of Domei, the Japanese news agency.

The message came from a Domei correspondent aboard the Japanese liner Fushimi Maru and said the Japanese ship had intercepted an SOS from the Canadian vessel.

It said the attack occurred this morning at latitude 52:54, longitude 14:14, about 300 miles west of Ireland, and that the Empress of Japan was disabled by a direct hit in her engine room.

The Empress of Japan, formerly plying between Vancouver, Honolulu, Japan and China ports and Manila, had been requisitioned by the British admiralty early in the war. It is believed she has been a troop carrier.

The reported attack on the Empress of Japan occurred in the same area where the 42,348-ton Empress of Britain, flagship of Canadian Pacific's Atlantic fleet, was crippled by German bombers Oct. 26 and later sent to the bottom by a German submarine Oct. 28. Forty-five persons were missing in the Empress of Britain's destruction.

The British reported that they later sank the submarine that got the Empress of Britain.

The Fushimi Maru, carrying several hundred Japanese withdrawn from Britain and homeward bound, left Galway, Ireland, Nov. 7 for Bermuda, the Panama Canal and Japan.

In July she arrived at Manila with 1640 British women and children who fled Hongkong when the Far Eastern problem became serious.

The liner was built at a cost of $7,500,000 and had accommodations for 1212 passengers. As a troopship she probably could carry six times that number.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The British announced today the submarine Sturgeon has destroyed two German supply ships while on patrol along the German-held "invasion coast."

London Denies Entire Convoy Sunk by Nazis

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The admiralty announced tonight that "a number of ships" escaped from a German surface raider last Tuesday when it fell upon a convoy in mid-Atlantic. A communique declared that "the enemy's claim to have annihilated this convoy" is not true.

Britain's Envoy Warns Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 9 (AP)—British Minister Owen St. Clair O'Malley has informed Foreign Minister Istvan Csaky that "I cannot condone" continued passage of German troops through Hungary, legation officials disclosed today.

The O'Malley statement, made in an interview with the foreign minister, was not a formal protest requiring a formal answer, officials said, but demonstrated that the British government was cognizant of Nazi military activities "inside neutral Hungary."

Girl, 16, Slain in Duel With Maine Step-Dad

ROCKLAND, Me., Nov. 9—Murder of a 16-year-old girl was revealed here today with the arrest, in a dazed condition, of her alleged slayer.

According to Sheriff C. Earle Ludwick, 16-year-old Pauline Young and her stepfather, John G. Phelps, 54, a WPA worker, fought a hammer and butcher knife battle eight days ago.

Phelps won. He confessed that he killed the girl, then dismembered her body with an axe, the sheriff said.

Phelps was arrested today as he was found wandering about the streets in a dazed, later dying, condition.

Police said Phelps had fought with his step-daughter because he bitterly opposed her prospective marriage to a young man and had violently attempted to dissuade her.

He had swallowed five tablets of a drug that may yet kill him.

Portions of the girl's body were found in five bags. The sheriff said the girl's stepfather had confessed to throwing a sixth sack into the sea off Atlantic wharf.

Mrs. Phelps, mother of the victim, had not reported the girl's disappearance until last Wednesday, City Marshal Arthur D. Fish said.

Mrs. Phelps was working at the time Pauline was slain, she told police.

Sheriff Ludwick said that Phelps told him he and Pauline had been arguing—he didn't explain why—when the stepfather killed her with a hammer.

"She was coming at me with a butcher knife," the sheriff quoted Phelps as saying.

On examination, it was found that Phelps had a wound in one wrist.

Sheriff Ludwick said he thought Phelps had tried to commit suicide by cutting his wrist after the tragedy, then obtained the drug that may yet end his life.

BERTHA HARRIS OF MATTAPAN
Testimony Saves Boy-Friend from Jail Term

Girl Who Saved Fiance From Cell Happy

How does a girl feel the morning after she has saved her sweetheart from a jail term?

As for modest Bertha Harris, 23, of Favre st., Mattapan, she was happy as she carried on as usual, tending her plants, which are her hobby, before she went to work.

Taking the witness stand in Roxbury court yesterday, Miss Harris saved her sweetheart, Lawrence Reynolds, from going to jail after he had been accused of burglary.

Mrs. Ernest Rust of Westland Ave., Back Bay, his former landlady, accused Reynolds of breaking and entering to steal a suit and coat valued at $50.

Miss Harris testified that she accompanied her sweetheart to the home of Mrs. Rust, and that a lodger let him in and told him where the clothes were.

Reynolds said that he had been unable to pay a room bill and that when he left Mrs. Rust's, she kept the suit and coat. After many attempts to find Mrs. Rust at home, he finally took them himself.

Miss Harris was with him during the whole procedure, she told the court.

After hearing the testimony of Miss Harris, Judge James A. Delay announced that he found no probable cause and told Reynolds to go free.

Kennedy Plans California Rest

Non-committal about future plans other than to reiterate that he is going to take a little rest in California, Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, left Boston today for a Providence stop-over to see his son, Robert, now in school there.

He leaves for San Francisco Monday to visit another son, John, at college there.

Kennedy left the Ritz-Carlton at 9:50 a. m. in his own car and told reporters:

"I'm going to stay in California for a while and then make a trip to Florida."

He refused to comment on the European war or his plans concerning a return to his post at London.

20 Boys Stone Train, To Get Whipping Post

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9 (AP)—A public whipping awaits 20 boys 9 to 15 years old at Earlington for breaking 35 street lights and throwing a stone through the window of a passenger train Halloween night.

City Judge C. W. Webb and Police Chief Elmer Todd said they had ordered the leather-strap whipping of the youngsters by parents. The date was not set.

Slain Girl's Bones Found

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (INS)—Discovery of a jawbone, three teeth and some bone fragments today was said to establish the corpus delicti which supports the confession of Thomas Conroy, 38-year-old Bronx janitor, that he strangled 10-year-old Genevieve Connolly and tossed her body into a blazing furnace.

Meek and nervous, the janitor was taken to the police lineup this morning. Shabbily dressed, he answered questions and was taken to Bronx homicide court for arraignment.

A heavy police guard surrounded him after angry mobs last night gathered at the Bronx police station, where he was first held.

CONFESSES SLAYING—Murder charge today faced Thomas Conroy (right), Bronx apartment house superintendent, after he allegedly confessed choking and cremating Genevive Connolly, 10-year-old parochial school honor student. Conroy's confession ended a two-day search for the girl.

BROOKLINE DRIVER DIES AFTER FIGHT

Victim of a fist fight with a motorist whose car had collided with his, Arthur Brissette, 34, of University rd., Brookline, died today of head injuries.

Brissette died at his home of a fractured skull and intra-cranial hemorrhage, according to Associate Medical Examiner Thomas P. Kendrick of Norfolk County.

With two brothers-in-law, Brissette, a janitor at the University pl. address, had attended the rodeo in Boston last night.

HEAD STRUCK STREET

The relatives, Winfield S. Tolman, 32, of Wallace st., Newton, and Leo Thibault, 28, who lives with Brissette, told police they were driving along Washington st. near Essex, downtown, when the car was involved in an accident. One of the fenders was scraped, they said.

"Brissette got out. There was a fight and he was knocked down. His head hit the street hard," the witnesses told police.

Occupants of the other car drove away.

Mrs. Dora Brissette, 30, widow of the fight victim, told police:

"I had been visiting Mrs. Tolman and returned home about 11:30 last night. Arthur was there. He said he got home about 11 o'clock."

BAD HEADACHE

Brissette had a bruise on his mouth and complained to his wife of a bad headache. He was nauseated.

Mrs. Brissette said that she sat up in a chair throughout the night. At about 6:30 a. m. today, she went into the bedroom.

"His face had a peculiar color and I was scared."

She called Dr. I. K. Parks, of Washington st., Brookline, who found Brissette dying. The medical examiner was called.

Mrs. Brissette was in a state of collapse today.

Capt. Joseph P. Mahoney of the Brookline police accompanied Tolman and Thibault to Boston in an attempt to trace the car in which the unknown assailant was riding.

It was not divulged whether witnesses of the fight had obtained the registration.

Nazi Bombs Peril Dying Chamberlain

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—It was learned today that within the past fortnight German bombs have fallen within the grounds of the 16th century house in Hampshire where former Prime Minister Chamberlain lies gravely ill.

One dropped barely 40 yards from the house which is set in a lonely wooded estate with no near neighbors.

A member of the household said tonight that "he is very low and death might come in a minute or a year."

King George and Queen Elizabeth visited the former prime minister recently and stayed about an hour.

THOUSANDS GREET BUCKLEY AS FRIEND

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, NOV. 9, 1940

'Man Nobody Knew Proves a Misnomer

By JAMES F. McENANEY

I know the "man nobody knows." Nearly one million voters in Massachusetts also know him either by a personal contact or through a friend.

In every Bay State village, town or city, from the tip of Cape Cod to Housatonic in the extreme western point of the state, Tom Buckley, auditor-elect is personally known by somebody.

For three days I travelled about the state with the victorious Democratic candidate, endeavoring to find out whether or not Tom Buckley, formerly of East Boston, was known or unknown.

With the old adage in mind—"seeing is believing"—I set out with Tom, a few hours after his selection was a certainty. Tom was off to thank his friends for electing him to the fourth highest constitutional office in the Commonwealth.

WEARS FALSE LABEL

Within 24 hours I was well convinced that this so-called "man nobody knows" had been falsely labeled.

He proved to me, beyond all reasonable doubt, that Tom Buckley was "the man everybody knows."

"Jim, to prove that I have been wrongfully dubbed 'the unknown man,' let's start in one of the more remote sections of the state and you see for yourself how I won the election," Auditor-elect Buckley said.

BROCKTON KNOWS HIM

We started for Martha's Vineyard and passing through Brockton we both decided to have a little lunch.

Stopping at a diner on Main st., on the outskirts of the Shoe City, which I had selected, my friend Tom said,

"Let's see who knows me here."

As we pushed the sliding door of the lunch wagon open, a tall dark-haired counter-man with a real Irish accent and big smile across his face shouted:

"Tom, old boy, congratulations. We all knew that you would make it. Sit down and have the best dinner in the house on me."

Returning the greetings, Tom thanked him for his support and also others in the diner who assisted at the local polls the previous day, by distributing Buckley cards.

I was then and there convinced that my friend Buckley had accomplished a lot of work.

"This is only one incident; wait until you see more," Tom said.

TELLS OF CAMPAIGN

En route to Woods Hole where we were to take the New Bedford boat to the Vineyard, Buckley related several of his campaign experiences.

He told of himself and brother William, a pensioned Boston police officer who was injured while in the line of duty and former Yankee Division doughboy, working from early morning until late at night campaigning.

"We were operating on a small bankroll. If we had more than five dollars between us at anytime we considered ourselves wealthy," Buckley said.

"Things were so tough that we made up sandwiches at home and ate them during the day.

"Go out and personally contact the voters, that was my slogan. One voter or friend was sure to contact ten others each of whom would contact further friends.

"It was like a chain letter system."

HOW HE DID IT

By the time we reached the boat landing I was well acquainted with the manner in which the Democratic candidate had conducted his campaign.

Over at the Vineyard as we got off the boat where friend Buckley was greeted by wharf hands and the local taxi driver who asked for the honor of driving him about the island for "no."

The following day we drove to Gay Head, near the famous Vineyard Cliffs.

"This is the point where I launched my campaign," Buckley said. "It is the most eastern-point in Massachusetts. Like Horace Greeley said, 'Go west young man' I did likewise, but the farthest west I wanted to go was western Massachusetts."

GETS GREETING

We walked over the sandy beach and across a newly constructed breakwater, a WPA project.

A distance of about 100 yards away I suddenly heard the shouts "Hey Tom, congratulations. I waited up all night listening to the returns, come over, the boys want to say hello."

They all knew him. He received 1023 votes, largest ever accorded a Democrat on the Vineyard.

From across the breakwater wall came scores of men, wearing rubber boots and heavy overcoats.

"Am I knwon or unknown?" Buckley again demanded.

The same held true all over the Island, along the Cape, and South Shore.

FEEL THEY KNOW HIM

We would stop for gas and I would ask the attendant, "Ever hear of Tom Buckley?"

The answer would be:

"I feel as though I know him. He was by here not so long ago and talked to my partner that works nights. He left his cards and I helped pass the word along. He sure is a man's man from what I hear."

Buckley would then introduce himself and off we went.

SAME EVERYWHERE

The same prevailed everywhere. It would be either a policeman, fireman, letter carrier, farmer, truck driver, lunch car proprietor, city worker teamsters, housewife, salesmen, etc., all who had passed the word along, "I know Buckley, give him a vote."

The answer is they did.

I was convinced.

Tom Buckley asked me if I wanted to see more of it.

Today he is traveling up through Clinton, Sterling, Fitchburg, Acton, Ayer and all along the line until he has fulfilled his initial campaign promise:

"I will be back after election."

BUCKLEY ON THE AIR—With James F. McEnaney, Boston Evening American staff writer, acting as interviewer, Auditor-elect Thomas J. Buckley (center) tells radio audience of his campaign . . . and how he won the election. Program Director John Reilly of Station WMEX (right) is also on the scene.

Delay in Building of Barracks Puts Off Bay State Draft Call

New England draftees who are not caught in the first call may tell the girl friend they probably won't be summoned until well into next year.

According to announcement from draft board officials, not only will New England be passed by in the second call on Dec. 2, but probably on the third call in February as well.

On the shoulders of the boys from the deep south will rest the duty of filling the early quotas for Uncle Sam's peacetime army, it appeared.

This, it was explained, is because of the climate. The army cannot get the best results in training with snow and cold weather to interfere, and under a policy that calls for keeping draftees as close to home as possible, it was decided to start southern camps first.

It was definitely announced that the second call, scheduled for Dec. 2 in New England, has been postponed.

At the same time, officials stated that 41 Bay State draft boards have been directed to send a total of 119 men to the three induction centers beginning Nov. 18.

Boston boards were not included in these initial orders, but they were expected to be forthcoming hourly. For inductions will be held during the Nov. 18-22 period, in which the State's initial quota of 532 men will be filled.

The men will be in Camp Devens by Nov. 22 or 23.

No reason was given by the War Department for postponing the second call "until further instructions," but Maj. Gen. James A. Woodruff, First Corps Area commander, expressed belief the reason was that "barracks aren't going up as rapidly as hoped."

Besides, he suggested Washington "wanted to make sure that the first call on Nov. 18 goes smoothly" and that they want to avoid overcrowding of present facilities.

DRAFT BOARDS LISTED

Gen. Woodruff pointed out the army had got away to a late start in building construction.

Here is a list of the draft boards and the number of men ordered to be sent to the Irvington st., armory Boston, Nov. 18.

Babson had telegraphed Mr. Roosevelt:

"Hearty congratulations. A defeated statistician, however, humbly reminds you that one per cent of the vote properly allocated would have elected Wendell Willkie. Therefore, know you will work for coalition both with Republicans and minority parties. Please keep well — four great years are ahead."

Uphold Wage-Hour Level, Defense Edict

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Maintenance of wage and hour standards on defense projects was put down today as a primary concern of the War Department in its efforts to press forward the nation's rearmament program.

There must be no relaxation of these standards, the department declared, if the program is to move "effectively forward."

Referring directly to construction of thousands of army cantonments in preparation for expansion of the land forces, Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, issued a declaration setting forth that general labor policy and calling for payment of overtime in factories where a longer than normal week is necessary to production.

BOMBERS FOR BRITAIN

The statement topped off a series of defense developments which started with President Roosevelt's press conference disclosure that roughly half of the output of American war materials, including the latest type of big bombers, was being made available to the British.

If the sharing policy, which Mr. Roosevelt emphasized was but a rule-of-thumb standard, is applied strictly to current big bomber production Britain may get about 40 of these formidable planes in the next few weeks.

Authorities here believed that about 80 or more would be out of the factory by December.

Jewish Drive In Third Week

The 1940 combined campaign of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies and the United Jewish Campaign today began its third week with workers commended highly by their leaders for results obtained throughout the city.

Hundreds of workers met at a luncheon which marked Women's Day at the campaign headquarters. Mrs. Max E. Bernkopf, chairman of the Women's Division, announced that 1300 women workers have been canvassing residential sections and "setting a new standard of achievement."

Guests included Henry Guild, general chairman of the 1941 Greater Boston Community Fund; Harry Carey, executive director of the Community Fund, and Ruth Gordon and Augusta Rueland, starring in "Here Today" at the Copley Theater.

In a brief message to the workers, Mr. Guild declared:

"I feel a conviction that this is the most important year for us in these movements and that success this year will help make democracy and the American way of life secure for us."

Three Convicts Cringe As Lash Is Applied

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 9 (AP)—Three prisoners cringed under the lash in New Castle County Workhouse today as Warden Elwood H. Wilson delivered 20 blows to each man.

William Bell, 24, fell to his knees several times and begged for mercy. He must also serve a four-year prison term. William E. Price, 22, must serve five years. James E. Johnson, 28, will serve a 10-year sentence.

After the whippings the men were taken to the infirmary for examination and treatment.

Laval Reported On Way to Rome

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—The French radio announced today that Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of the Vichy government had left France for Rome on "a special diplomatic mission." The broadcast was picked up by NBC.

Election Votes Cast Mount to 48,238,481

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) — The total of votes cast for President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie in Tuesday's election mounted to 48,238,481 in today's latest unofficial tabulation, indicating that the final presidential count, covering also minor party candidates, would be close to 50,000,000.

The final 1936 total was 45,647,117.

The latest tabulation showed that President Roosevelt received 25,361,762 votes and Willkie 21,876,719 in 120,620 of the country's 127,245 voting units, making Mr. Roosevelt's plurality 4,485,043.

World's Largest Liner To Sail as Troopship

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP) — Waterfront reports that the 85,000-ton British liner Queen Elizabeth would sail Monday or Tuesday as a troopship were strengthened today as the ship hummed with activity and a diver went down to determine the amount of silt on her bottom.

INCOME TAX BOOST FORESEEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (INS)—Sweeping revision of the entire federal tax structure, including a sharp boost in individual income and some business taxes, was foreseen today.

The tax changes are expected to follow predicted congressional approval of an increase in the debt limit to $65,000,000,000 in January.

With income taxes nearing the 100 per cent mark on big incomes, and with corporation income taxes only recently raised, an increase in the 4 per cent normal individual levy is expected. Tax experts pointed out that Great Britain has raised the normal income tax to 37½ per cent.

Many congressional leaders in tax affairs have predicted that the excess profits tax, recently enacted, would be revised before revenue is raised under it.

Ballot Recount Petition Started

The State Democratic committee today began circulation of petitions for a recount of the ballots which gave Gov. Saltonstall re-election by 9027 votes over their standard bearer, Paul A. Dever. A total of 1000 signatures are necessary.

At the same time, the committee placed a civilian guard to join police in the 24-hour watch over the Boston ballots at City Hall. The recount is expected to start late this month.

Chairman William H. Burke announced as well that a re-check would be asked on the 70,000 absentee ballots which were cast in the election.

Local Girl Newsreel Director

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (AP)—A young woman who majored in chemical engineering because a college professor told her she was "too stupid" to understand it is perhaps the only feminine newsreel production director in the country.

Louise Rousseau

She is pretty Louise Rousseau, 30, who expects to affiliate with a motion picture studio and become one of the extremely few full-fledged women film directors.

"And why not?" demands the tall, slender, nimble-witted New Englander. "There is no reason why a woman can't become just as good a motion picture director as a man, providing she's got what it takes.

"Once a woman can prove that she has confidence and the ability, the studio, players and sound stage workers will give her just as much assistance as they would a man. Sometimes they will go even farther out of their way to cooperate with a woman than they would for a man."

Born in Provincetown, Mass., Miss Rousseau completed high school in Dallas, entered Texas University Engineering School and later transferred to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where she majored in metallurgy.

Two years ago, Miss Rousseau entered the movie short business for herself, although she still keeps a connection with a newsreel company in New York. She flies back there every six weeks to help direct the filming of one of the better known radio quiz programs. She currently is making a series of two-reelers about screen celebrities.

No Compromise Now, Hitler Warns Britain

BERLIN, Nov. 9—Germany today celebrated the 17th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's Munich beer hall putsch while the Fuehrer's prediction of ultimate victory over Britain and his rejection of "any compromise" resounded through the Reich.

Addressing Nazi party veterans in the Loewenbrau beer cellar amid salvoes of "Heils" and thunderous applause, Hitler said the war would end only when Germany achieves the final triumph.

Asserting that Germany's war machine is the "world's first," Hitler belittled the airplane production capacity of Britain, Canada and Australia and added scornfully:

"With regard to American airplane production, it cannot be represented even by astronomical figures. I therefore do not want to compete, but I can assure you of one thing:

"German production capacity is the highest in the world."

NO COMPROMISE

"Today I reject any compromise," he declared.

"Germany with her ally (Italy) is strong enough to meet any combination of powers in this world. There is no conlation of powers with might to match ours.

"The fight will go on until the German people end it by our victory . . .

"As supreme commander, I am personally certain that the victory will be ours."

By these words Hitler scotched any idea that Germany is making advances aimed at possible peace and dispelled all expectations of a possible axis "peace offensive."

Hitler also announced the German air attacks on England in reply to British raids on the reich's "civilian population" would continue without abatement. He derided the "estimates and calculations of our enemies" regarding the reich and proclaimed the "immense striking power" of the German armed forces.

NO MERCY FOR BRITAIN

Referring to nightly RAF raids on Germany, he declared:

"These cowardly assaults have led to merciless reprisals by the German air force, which will be continued."

Addressing his followers in an hour-long speech last night, Hitler referred ironically to "domestic and foreign prophecies of the impending downfall of the Nazis" and said all such speculations had broken down and were bound to break down in future.

Asserting that the German military machine is being groomed and improved incessantly, Hitler declared:

"The moment will come when the gentlemen now conquering the world with their mouths will have to resist with arms."

He spoke sarcastically of the United States as "the land of unlimited freedom," adding that "every immigrant must pass an unusually difficult examination before permission is given him to tread the sacred soil of democracy, although scarcely 10 persons to the square kilometer live there.

He indicated that the Reich, as a result of this stop order, had freed additional industrial facilities for airplane production. He said he had switched production facilities to the improvement of the things which "I believe must be especially strong."

SILENT ON BLAST

Around him as he spoke behind closed doors in the Lowenbrau beer cellar were leaders of the party and survivors of both the 1923 putsch and the bomb explosion which rocked Buergerbrau Hall a year ago only seconds after Hitler had left. He made no mention of that incident last night.

The Fuehrer rejected all thought of compromise in the war and declared:

"I imagine that I am not only the hardest man which the German nation has had for decades, perhaps centuries, but in addition I possess the greatest authority.

"I have no munitions shares in my possession, I earn nothing from this war. . . . These international criminals are at the same time the greatest munitions profiteers there are. The factories belong to them. They make the business. They are the same people we had earlier in Germany."

THREATENS BLOCKADE

He dangled the threat of intensified air and submarine warfare before the British, and declared "we will see who is blockaded in a few months; we or the others."

In reviewing the war to date, the Fuehrer said munitions expended by Germany thus far amounted to "only one part of one month's production," and listed German casualties at a little more than half of those in the Franco-Prussian waa of 870-71. German losses on this basis would total slightly more than 200,000.

The anniversary today has been designated as a "work day," and ceremony was dispensed with so that Germans may concentrate on the effort to defeat Britain

"One of us must break and that will not be Germany," Hitler said of the war and Germany's enemies.

BOASTS OF MIGHT

"The moment will come when the gentlemen who now conquer the entire world with their mouths will have to stand up with their weapons. Then we will see who has employed the months better: we or the others."

"They wanted to destroy Germany with an air war," he said. "I will now show them who will be destroyed."

RAF Bombs Munich As Hitler Is Speaking

til 10:10 p.m., when a group of the British flies made one last defiant swoop over what was thought to be the neighborhood of the hall and turned homeward.

BOMBS HALT BROADCAST

The Loewenbraeu hall is not the same one in which Hitler had such a narrow escape last year when a bomb exploded just after he had left. That was the Buergerbraeu Keller. It turned as a result of the explosion and has not been restored. The Loewenbraeu Keller, however, is equally well-known among the Nazis.

In addition to the reported hitting of the beer hall, the British were certain their raid upset the German arrangements to broadcast Hitler's speech.

Attention was called to the fact that both the German and Italian radios announced sudden cancellation of the broadcast a few minutes before it was scheduled to be made.

Royal Air Force men were jubilantly pointing out today that this is the first time the R. A. F. has been able to "keep an appointment" with Hitler, and they were confident he would not soon forget the visit.

British bombers roamed from Germany through Nazi-occupied territory to the northern Italian centers of Turin and Milan, the air ministry announced.

TURIN PLANTS BLASTED

An aircraft factory at Turin and the Pirelli magneto works at Milan were blasted with high explosives.

A particularly strong attack was made on the German-held submarine base at Lorient, in France.

Raids were also made on oil refineries at Gelsenkirch and Frankfurt, aircraft factories at Nuremburg and Amsterdam, freight yards at Soest, Oenebruck, Duisburg, and the hook of Holland, and railway junctions at Saarbrucken, Mainz and Le Havre.

The widespread British attacks were carried out while Nazi night raiders concentrated chiefly on London and surrounding areas.

London had two daylight air raid alarms today and a single raider loosed three bombs upon business buildings, causing undetermined casualties. Fires sprang up in one section of the city.

Bombs fell, too, at isolated points in the midlands, in southeast and southwest England and in the northeast and south. Several planes were reported to have machine-gunned various areas from low altitude.

As darkness settled, the city received her now customary night alarm.

An earlier official announcement, indicating the rapidly spreading activities of the British bomber squadrons, stated:

British Drop Bombs On Turin, Cagliari

ROME, Nov. 9 (AP)—British planes bombed Turin in northern Italy and Cagliari in Sardinia last night, the Italian high command announced today. Ten persons were reported killed and several injured.

During the British raid on Turin, the communiue asserted, bombs fell near a maternity hospital, San Luigi Sanatorium, and a military hospital and barracks, causing some damage.

British raiders also bombed Tobruk and Derna, in Libya, the communique said, and nine persons were killed and 26 wounded in the lattter city.

U. S. SHIP SINKS OFF AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY, Australia Nov. 9 (AP)—Naval Minister William Hughes announced today that the 5883-ton American freighter City of Rayville blew up and sank off Cape Otway, near Melbourne, last night, but said 37 members of the crew of 38 were saved.

Reuters, British news agency quoted some members of the crew as blaming sabotage for the blast but Hughes said the sinking probably was caused by a mine.

The City of Rayville was the first American ship to be sunk by war activity since the outbreak of hostilities Sept. 3, 1939. The U. S. neutrality law bars American ships from belligerent ports but Australia has not been declared within the zone of conflict.—Editor's Note.

Naval and fishing boats assisted in the rescue of the survivors, who were landed at a postal town. The missing man was identified as Third Engineer James Bryan, 22, of Norfolk, Va.

Hughes previously had announced the sinking of an unidentified British freighter in Australian waters and said this also was due to mines.

Second Officer Green, who was on the bridge when the blast occurred, said:

"We saw nothing suspicious. After the explosion the ship dived by the head with incredible speed. There was no need to call the crew to boat stations because they were already there. I went overboard when she was three-quarters down and was picked up after 15 minutes."

The City of Rayville, owned by the U. S. Maritime Commission but leased to the U. S. Lines last February for $4706 a month, was built in Tampa, Fla., and was registered at that port.

Three Local Men On City of Rayville

Three local men, one an officer, were crew members of the ill-fated City of Rayville.

They are:

Second Officer John E. Green of Medford, Kenneth Sutherland of Boston and Albert S. Jameson of Winthrop. Also aboard was Deck Cadet William F. Dire of Portsmouth, N. H.

The Maritime Commission in Washington revealed that the missing man is Mac B. Bryan of Randleman, N. C., a third engineer.

U. S. Plans No Action On Freighter Sinking

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—Secretary Hull said today that the United States planned no action in connection with the sinking of the American freighter City of Rayville pending a complete investigation.

In reply to questions Hull said preliminary information indicated that the vessel had been struck by a floating mine, but that the complete circumstances had not been determined.

10,000 Urged to Man Air Defense of N. E.

Wanted: 10,000 New England volunteers to man observation posts to be located four miles apart in Massachusetts and other states, and thus aid in their own defense against invasion from the air.

So the call went out today to New Englanders from Maj.-Gen. J. E. Chaney, commanding officer of the Army's Air Defense Command with headquarters at Mitchel Field, N. Y.

He sought to complete organization of an aircraft warning service with the help of the American Legion by Nov. 20. Some 650 observation posts will be manned by the 10,000 New Englanders, he said.

The first test sector will be established in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut and part of New York which covers the home front industrial area comprising many objectives.

"Such an area is consequently one of the most important to defend," said Gen. Chaney.

URGES NEW AIRPORTS

Some 10 to 20 observers will be needed for each post, which will be equipped with a telephone through which the observer may flash headquarters.

Recommendations for construction of 38 new airports and improvement of 78 others in New England meanwhile were made by Crocker Snow, chairman of the New England Conference of State Aviation officials to the Civil Aeronautics Authority at Washington.

Execution of the plan, Snow explained, requires co-operation of local, state and federal officials to make the necessary funds available. The Boston airport is suggested for "Class 4" development.

PLAN FOR AIRPORTS

The plan for Massachusetts and Rhode Island airports follows:

Massachusetts: Class 2 airports for the following communities now without any landing facilities or lacking adequate facilities — Buzzards Bay, Attleboro, Newton, Concord, Lowell, Weymouth and Southbridge. New Bedford was suggested as a location for a Class 3 airport.

Improvements of existing landing fields to Class 2 airports — Chatham, Provincetown, Falmouth, Hyannis, Oak Bluffs, Nantucket, Taunton, Plymouth, Brockton, Norwood, Framingham, Mendon, Beverly, Newburyport, Gardner, Orange-Athol, North Adams, Northampton, Great Barrington, Springfield and Palmer.

Class 2 airports suggested for Class 3 development — Pittsfield, Westfield and Worcester.

The Boston airport is suggested for Class 4 development.

Rhode Island: The development of a Class 2 airport at Narragansett is suggested.

Improvement of existing landing fields to Class 2 airports — Woonsocket, Newport and Westerly. The Providence airport is suggested for Class 3 development on a Class 4 site.

Gala Old Howard Holiday Revue

Next week's burlesque festivities at the Old Howard will start with a midnight show Sunday night. To be exact, at 12:01 Monday a. m., the "Vaniteasers" troupe will swing into action, with Jean Mode, one of those breezy western darlings, as leading dance star and artist model, and with that old West End favorite, Frank X. Silk, as leading comic. The first regular performance Monday will start at 1 p. m., instead of at noon, on account of holiday theatrical regulations. On a holiday like Armistice Day the Sunday laws are in effect in Massachusetts.

Jean Mode

Sunday midnight headliners also include Lois Defee, Peaches, Bob Alda, the Honey Family, Leona Lewis, Marion Wakefield, Gypsy Nina, the Hall-Hayes team, Eleanor Samuels and Bobby Joyce and Ginger.

With chic Miss Mode in the "Vaniteasers" beauty line next week will be Vickie Welles, Petite Carroll, Annette Cliff and Judy Shaw. Starting laughs with Frank Silk in the comedy scenes will be George Murray and Chick Hunter. The Seven Faloudys will be seen in their "Twists and Twirls" act. Sylvia and Christian are to display some of the dance stunts with which they entertained the Old World until recently, and Bob Flinch will display his puppets. Bobby Burns, Allen Dale, Marty Wayne, Doretta Dale and the Hurds, Jean and Myra, will round out the featured performers.

Mexico's Role On Screen

The role which Mexico's twenty million people will play in American hemisphere defense, and the reasons behind Mexico's re-born friendship for the United States today are shown in the latest March of Time film, "Mexico." It comes to the Keith Memorial Theater today as an extra added attraction to the regular show of "Seven Sinners" and "Mexican Spitfire Out West."

This newest issue was filmed by staff cameramen who went to Mexico four months ago, when March of Time's editors first foresaw the increasing importance of Uncle Sam's nearest Latin neighbor-country in the development of American hemisphere defense strategy. The cameramen have since filmed the recent elections and other events in Mexico which are destined to have a vital effect upon Mexico-U. S. relations.

Mexico, long resentful of the might and power of the U. S., and openly sympathetic toward Soviet Russia, Nazi Germany and Japan, today faces a dilemma. Her leaders realize that co-operation with the U. S. in hemisphere defense is the only way in which Mexican independence can be preserved. It also reveals for the first time the full story of Mexico's new kind of revolution and how it is affecting her poverty-stricken people today.

Todd Will Bring Fair Show Here

Michael Todd, who brought "Hot Mikado" to Boston direct from the World's Fair last year, will again be represented here next month with one of his World's Fair attractions.

This time Mr. Todd will bring his Gay New Orleans, a major hit at the Fair, to a local house. It will have a cast of 150 entertainers. Gay New Orleans is the only one of his World's Fair shows which Mr. Todd will take on tour.

'Crazy Show' Scores at Globe

What they call glorified burlesque is the new Globe offering, Russell Trent's "Crazy Show", with Trent himself as the star zany or top nut or master clown. It's a fun show, and then some. For the fair Marion Morgan is in it to provide a feast for admirers of feminine loveliness—and there are plenty of them — and there are other charmers in the spotlight, including Jean Eugene and Rita Devere. It's a big laugh and oomph show, this new production at the Globe.

Jean Eugene

There will be a Sunday midnight performance, which will make a special appeal to those who want to start the holiday with some of the best entertainment burlesque has to offer. After Sunday the Globe midnight shows will be on Friday.

With the Trent troupe are Harry Levan, Bobby Vail, Lettie Boles, Will Hayes, Buster Boles and other burlesquers. Globe vaudeville offers the Three Drews and Thornton and Reed in song hits and the Tahiti Tweets in a dance novelty.

Dorchester's Strand Marks 22d Year

The M. & P. Strand theater, Dorchester, celebrating its 22d anniversary throughout the week commencing today, is showing Director Alfred Hitchcock's exciting film classic, "Foreign Correspondent," together with the Wallace Beery-starring western, "Wyoming." During this week only, matinees show will start daily at 1:30 p. m. and evening shows at 7:45 p. m.

Gladys Fox Returns to Town As Headliner on Casino Stage

To appropriately usher in the holiday, the Casino Theater will put on a midnight jamboree tomorrow night featuring titian-tressed Gladys Fox.

Recently chosen Chicago's most beautiful show-girl, Miss Fox is not without honor in the Hub where her burlesque fans are legion.

Aiding her in making the Casino's new show an eye-soother will be Lili Sorrell, the saucy Parisienne with the south-of-the-border accent who is being held over a second week by popular demand. Another holdover is the popular Diane Walker, a blonde lovely. Laugh-clown Tommy Raft, one of burlesque's favorite comics, heads the comedy cavalcade which includes Ben Hamilton, Bobby Fay, Freddie Walker, Bobby Goodwin, George Kaye, the Wallace Brothers and Elinor Walent.

Gladys Fox

There are also some representative vaudeville acts on the new bill.

Films at So Station

South Station Theater's new program, offering a preview of winter playgrounds, suggests Sun Valley, romantic ski resort in Idaho, and the tropical West Indies as likely Winter vacation lures.

Other items on the two and a half hour bill are MGM's crime-does-not-pay short, "Soak the Rich"; two color cartoons, a "Three Stooges" comedy and newsreels.

'All Father Days' On Air Tonight

"Life With Father," which grossed approximately $980,000 on Broadway this past year and another $500,000 in Chicago and here in Boston, will celebrate its first birthday tonight with a special three-way broadcast.

Tonight at 9:35 the audience of the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse comedy at the Civic Repertory Theater, as well as radio listeners from coast to coast, will have an opportunity to hear not only Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern, co-starring in the Hub edition, but also Howard Lindsay and Dorothy Stickney of the New York troupe and Lillian Gish and Percy Waram, who play Mother and Father in Chicago.

Co-authors Lindsay and Crouse have written a 10-minute skit which will be performed over a long-distance telephone hookup by all three "Fathers" and "Vinnies" in the three cities during the first intermission. "Life With Father" tonight completes its sixth week here.

"Elmer the Great," the Aldrich and Myers production starring Hollywood's platter-mouthed Joe E. Brown, will move into New York's Hudson Theater Nov. 18, following the termination of its local engagement a week from tonight.

The original plan had been to give the Ring Lardner comedy revival a workout in Washington and Philadelphia before opening on Broadway Christmas week.

A revue that employs tricks instead of gags for blackouts will make its bow at the Shubert Theater Monday night, when Dante brings his magic show, "Sim Sala Bim," here for a two-week engagement, following a successful Broadway run.

Heralded by Dante and Miss Mol-Yo Miller, a cast of 35 will go through their illusions as if "Sim Sala Bim" were a musical revue in the accepted sense.

"I believe a good illusion," contends Dante, "is better if it follows a funny scene. So I mix the laughs with the tears. I've dozens of surprises for Boston and you can depend on it that my mystery revue has everything in it that I have learned in 40 years of magic-making."

Not since 1927 has Dante performed in the United States. During the past 13 years he has toured the world, was in Berlin when the war broke out and was promptly ordered out of Germany by the Nazis.

PEGGY WOOD IN CAST

Dwight Deere Wiman announces that Peggy Wood has been engaged to appear in John van Druten's new comedy, "Old Acquaintance," in which Jane Cowl will be starred.

It's Elmer---He's Great

PLATTER-MOUTHED JOE E. BROWN as Elmer the Great in the late Ring Lardner's baseball comedy of the same name now tenanting the Plymouth.

FLORA ROBSON in "Ladies in Retirement," the best murder - mystery - melodrama in years, is terrific, to put it mildly. Don't miss it at the Wilbur Theater.

'Wyoming' Takes Olympia Program

At the Washington Street Olympia starting today and continuing thru Tuesday, the feature attraction will be "Wyoming," starring Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, and Ann Rutherford. The companion film will be "Dr. Kildare Goes Home."

New Screen Bills Offered

Both the Beacon and Tremont screens will bring the Ann Sheridan-George Raft co-starrer, "They Drive By Night," to their patrons tomorrow for a four-day run. The co-feature at the former movie-house will be "Public Deb No. 1," with Brenda Joyce and Ralph Bellamy. "Queen of Destiny," with Anna Neagle and Anton Walbrook in the Victoria and Albert roles, will be the other feature at the Tremont.

For tomorrow only, the Bijou is showing "Danger Flight," with John Trent and Marjorie Reynolds, and "Island of Doomed Men," featuring Peter Lorre and Rochelle Hudson.

Bowdoin's screen fare through Tuesday features "Boom Town," that four-for-the-price-of-one gusher, offering Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr, and "One Crowded Night."

MARY, who never met a Yale man—Toni Favor plays her in "Life With Father," which enters its seventh week at the Civic Repertory Theater on Monday.

Ford to Direct

John Ford, whose "Long Voyage Home" rates him another Academy Award, has been handed the director job on "Tobacco Road" by 20th Century-Fox. He is now in Georgia with a camera crew.

By BETTY ALDEN

IF YOU ARE LOOKING for a hobby and want to make your daughters and granddaughters happy—take up raising orchids . . .

Years ago the late Albert Cameron Burrage began his hobby of cultivating all sorts of rare tropical blooms at his estate in Manchester, and little did he dream that his exquisite species of white orchid would become a traditional part of every Burrage debutante or bridal bouquet . . .

For several weeks the gardener at Seahome, now occupied by Grandmother Burrage, has been keeping a watchful eye on the greenhouse temperature so a very special spray of white orchids would be ready to be used in Nancy Burrage's bridal bouquet today . . .

Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., of Ipswich, became the bride of William B. Chace at a fashionable wedding in Ascension Memorial Church, Ispwich, followed by a wedding breakfast at Candlewood Farm, home of her parents . . .

Her bridal gown of white satin was trimmed with lace and her tulle veil fell from a small lace cap . . . Lilies of the valley were combined with the orchids in her bouquet . . .

Her sister, Cynthia, as maid of honor headed an attractive bevy of attendants, all gowned in pale gray taffeta, with bouquets of contrasting colors . . . They were the Misses Diana Bird, Margot Clark, Joan Dick, Mary Hutchins, Elizabeth L. Putnam and Mrs. Shepherd Brooks (Esme de Menocal) . . . George H. Edgell, Jr., of Cambridge, was best man for Mr. Chace . . .

Alice Gordon Hutchins Weds

ANOTHER VINCENT CLUB member changing her name today is Alice Gordon Hutchins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hutchins of Concord, who is being married to Elton Clark, Jr., of Sutter Creek, California, son of Mr. Elton Clark of Pomfret, Vermont, formerly of Framingham Center . . .

The ceremony is taking place in Trinity Church, Concord, followed by a reception at Funkatasset Farm, home of the bride's parents . . . Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride is wearing a white faille gown with her mother's wedding veil of old family lace . . .

Charlotte Hutchins, a student at Bryn Mawr College, has come on to be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are Patricia Farley, Ledlie Laughlin, Gay Sloane of New York and Mary S. Wheeler of Boston . . . They are all dressed alike in deep blue crepe with panels of powder blue down the front, and small blue velvet hats . . .

Gifford-Winsor Ceremony

WEDDING BELLS are chiming out in Chestnut Hill this afternoon in honor of the marriage of Adelaide Winsor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennard Winsor, to Benjamin Chase Gifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gifford of Fall River . . .

The ceremony in First Parish Church, Brookline, is being followed by a reception at the Winsor home . . . The bride has chosen a gown of cream satin trimmed with heirloom lace, and her full length veil is also of old family lace . . . She is carrying a bouquet of bouvardia . . .

Mrs. Daniel Cheever of Southboro, the former Olivia Thorndike, and Sylvia Winsor, sister of the bride, are honor attendants, and the bridesmaids include Mrs. J. David Lannon of New York, the former Barbara Winlock, at whose marriage last Saturday today's bride was the only attendant . . . Adelaide's other bridesmaids are Olivia Ames, Cornelia Baker, Ruth Edmands, Anstiss Dane, and Louise Gifford, sister of the bridegroom . . .

Wine and pale blue is the color scheme for the bridesmaids' costumes . . . wine crepe dresses trimmed with blue, bands of the two colors in their hair, and bouquets of wine chrysanthemums and blue larkspur . . . Richard K. Hawes, Jr., of Westport Harbor, is best man and there is a large usher staff . . .

Harvest Sale In Newton

With Thanksgiving just around the corner it's not surprising that plans are well under way for the annual food sale to be held at the First Parish Church, Chestnut Hill, Nov. 27, for the benefit of Newton and Brookline charities.

This harvest sale, held each year the day before Thanksgiving, provides hostesses with an opportunity to stock up on special holiday delicacies, and at the same time do their bit for charity.

Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall will serve as honorary chairman and co-chairmen will be Mrs. Charles W. Brown, Jr., and Mrs. John B. Swift. Mrs. Edwin S. Webster and Mrs. Channing G. Simmons will have charge of the poultry table; Mrs. Arthur Nelson, cake; Mrs. Winslow Sears and her daughter, Nancy, will make fudge in chafing dishes right at the fair; and Mrs. Stephen S. Bartlett will have a varied assortment of mince and squash pies at her table.

Flower Talk For Leaguers

The subject of a lecture to be held soon at the Junior League reminds us that we will soon be counting the days til Christmas.

On Nov. 25, the Junior League Garden Club and the Arts Department are presenting Mrs. Anson Howe Smith of Dedham, well known lecturer on flower arrangement, who will give some timely ideas on decorating the house for Christmas.

Mince Meat Pie---Try It!

BY MARTHA LEE

Desserts may come and desserts may go, but mince meat pie, served hot and fragrant right from the oven, retains its prestige as a particularly delightful climax to a good meal. Small wonder this, for good things from far places join together to make the superb blend of flavor—choice beef and suet, Grecian currants, Valencia seeded raisins and other selected fruits as well as rare spices.

Since mince meat pies are brought to the table steaming, they may have a place on "quickie" menus—putting the pie in the oven first and letting it bake while preparing the other foods and serving the main course.

MINCE MEAT PIE

Line a pie pan with pastry rolled to ⅛-inch thickness. Fill with canned mince meat, using a 2-lb. can or jar of it for a pie of average size. Moisten the crust edge with a few drops of water, then place narrow strips of pastry across the top in lattice fashion. Cut off ends of strips so they extend ½-inch from the edge of the pan. Fold ends under lower crust and press edges firmly together. Bake in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes, then reduce temperature and continue baking in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 30 minutes or until the mince meat boils.

The second recipe given below might be a second choice if you don't want to take the time for rolling out pastry.

MINCE MEAT PINEAPPLE PUDDING

3 cups soft bread crumbs, packed in
¾ cup canned mince meat
1 cup shredded pineapple
1 cup pineapple juice
2 tbsp. butter

Mix together the bread crumbs, mince meat, shredded pineapple, and pineapple juice and pour into a buttered casserole. Dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 45 minutes or until browned. Serve with a hard sauce or whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Here are some suggestions for variety in mince pies

MINCE MEAT BLACKBERRY PIE

9-inch pastry shell
1 No. 2 can blackberries
1 medium (1 lb.) tin or jar of mince meat

Drain juice well from a can of blackberries and combine the blackberries with mince meat. Spread bottom of pastry shell with melted butter. Fill with mince meat mixture. Cover with top crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Reduce temperature to slow oven (325 deg. F.) and continue baking about 20 minutes, or until pie is browned. Serve warm with sugar sauce, using blackberry juice as liquid.

MINCE MEAT AND APPLE CRUMB PIE

9-inch pastry shell
1 medium (1 lb.) tin or jar of mince meat
2 cups sliced apples
1-3 cup sugar, approximately
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1-3 cup sugar
4 tbsp. butter, well chilled

Spread mince meat over the bottom of pastry shell. Combine apples and 1-3 cup sugar and arrange over mince meat. Combine flour and 1-3 cup sugar and work in butter. Sprinkle crumb mixture over apples. Bake in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) 10 minutes, then reduce temperature and continue baking in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 30 minutes. Serve warm.

MINCE MEAT CUSTARD PIE

9-inch pastry shell
1 medium (1 lb.) tin or jar mince meat
3 eggs
2-3 cup sugar
1½ cups milk
1 tsp. vanilla

Spread mince meat over bottom of pastry shell. Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and milk, mixing thoroughly. Stir until sugar is dissolved, add vanilla.

Spoon custard gently over mince meat. Place in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) then immediately turn thermostat to moderate oven (360 deg. F.). Bake 45 minutes, or until custard is set.

Smart Set Fashions

Coat Matches Car Upholstery

THERE was a time, they tell us, when ladies wore broadcloth coats that matched the plum or bottle green or royal crimson upholstery of their barouches . . Though the idea isn't brand new, it's still breath-taking . . . this plaid coat that matches exactly the smart plaid upholstery of a new and very snappy car. The head of the Art and Designing Division of a famous motor car company designed this sports ensemble for the Harper's Bazaar fashion show . . . planned to show the ability of automobile designers in designing fashions in clothes. The coat has a leather front, resembling the little leather jackets that Highland Chieftains used to wear.—ANNICE BRINK.

Girl's Home A 'Prison'

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of 19 and my problem is lack of social life. I'm not allowed to go out at night, or even in the daytime. I'm tired of this sort of an existence and I've decided to leave and get a job doing housework . . . in. Of course I'd . . . "run away."

I'm a high school graduate and could have had a nice office position, but my mother prevented me from getting it, because I would have been alone w. . . his office. I've tried to talk over the matter with both my parents, but all I got was a severe beating which I'll never for. . . I should be grateful . . . board.

Do you think it's . . . to break away fr. . . I can live my own life, or had I better stay and "take it?"

DESPERATE.

Unless you are what is known as a "problem child," my dear, I can see no reason for your parents' attitude in refusing to . . . a job or associate with . . . ple of your own age. And to . . . a girl of 19 immune fr. . . seem civilized to me. . . for whom your pare. . . spect, your teacher, the . . . the family doctor, to . . . ter out with them, if th. . . listen to you.

I hope you will not run . . . from home as you threaten . . . Please write me again and tell me how things turn out.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M . . . a . . . Amazon whose girth was only exceeded by her salty and often profane mirth.

She'd been a frail flash of a girl when she slipped away from her blue-blooded Philadelphia home and eloped with a young lieutenant, as young and untested . . . and headed for Indian . . .

Never in all her sheltered years had she known discomfort or responsibility, much less . . . faced danger.

But within a week she was following her husband's regiment, as . . . hungry as any prairie wolf, and taking it all in her stride.

She did not have even the gold craze to buoy her spirit. For years life was one long Indian skirmish, her only haven some transient camp fire.

In one week, she watched four of the babes she had borne without medical aid die from diphtheria . . . dry-eyed as the wagon wheels rolled over their shallow graves—and her heart. Yet lived to bear four more . . .

. . . nearing the end—still as merry and as mellow as old wine. Her house was . . . She rarely talked of the p. . . but if one brought it up her big . . . tightened, her strong old fingers . . .

"What else was there to do?" she'd snort. "Life was like that . . . We . . . Some had to take the beating. You young whippersnappers don't know what it's all about. Playing around with croquet balls when we were . . ."

Rambling through the Ghost Towns of the Mother Lode, I think of her and the thousands like her who broke that wilderness.

Still their mark lingers in the crumbling walls . . . New England roses climbing over an old adobe hut, in a . . . wilderness with only coyote and buzzard for neighbor. Mats of . . . pink half lost in the weeds . . . harvest of . . . and . . . carried through . . . risked . . . all they had . . .

WOMEN LIKE THAT MADE THIS NATION! THEIR COURAGE . . . OUR FIGHTING FAITH MADE AMERICA . . .

In a letter to the governor Feeney pointed out that in the first year of pari-mutuels in New York operators there made five cents on each dollar, while Massachusetts racing moguls cleaned up more than seven cents.

Actual figures, Feeney declared, were 5 and 199-1000 cnts for New York operators, as contrasted with 7 and 258-1000 cents for Massachusetts operators.

TO FILE BILLS

Feeney further declared he would have bills filed in the incoming Legislature seeking to provide an adequate share of the true profits of race track betting for the Commonwealth and asked the Governor's co-operation in having the bills enacted into law.

Dog track operators in Massachusetts, Feeney pointed out, get 11 and 489-1000 cents to each dollar bet. This amount, he stated, is more than double the amount allowed the expensively operated horse tracks in New York, and is unjustified because of the "insignificant investment" represented in dog tracks.

In a previous effort to secure more money for the state from the tracks, Feeney had declared that a bill passed by the last Legislature brought in only $135,903 to the state, instead of the $450,000 which the Legislature had assured the Governor would be brought in under terms of the bill.

ASKED $75,000

Gov. Saltonstall at that time had asked for $750,000 from the tracks of Massachusetts.

In his letter to the Governor, Feeney stated that the expense of racing in New York is as high and probably higher that it any other tracks in the country.

"Yet Suffolk Downs, as shown by actual official record," he added, "receives 2 and 59-1000 cents per dollar of handle more than New York tracks."

IF YOU ARE a 21-year-old girl, blonde and beautiful, abandon the idea of obtaining a lucrative job in the Army.

Uncle Sam's military authorities do not want you.

Their specifications call for camp "mothers"—not glamorous hostesses.

A young woman may have all the appeal of Marlene Dietrich, all the grace of Norma Shearer and all the wit of Bette Davis, but the luring combination will avail her not.

The "over forty" widow who solicitously advises a boy to put on his rubbers lest he get cold on rainy days is the woman the Army seeks.

This may be disappointing to enlistees and conscriptees who imagined that military hostesses were going to be Twentieth Century Cleopatras.

But it will be welcome news to soldiers' wives and the girls they leave behind.

TO PREVENT FIRES

it is always well to know what starts them. For that reason the report of the Boston Fire Department merits general study.

Last year the principal cause of damage to homes and public buildings was the careless disposal of cigarettes.

This thoughtlessness on the part of smokers accounted for nearly eight of the city's three hundred and sixty-eight fires.

Other leading causes were defective chimneys, faulty oil burners, exposed wiring, makeshift garbage containers and match-playing children.

It is not always easy to extinguish a blaze after it has begun to spread through the partitions of a house.

But it is easy to recognize and stop doing the things that common sense says start fires.

"BEST DRESSED WOMEN

are to be found in New York and Hollywood," says a reader recently returned from a transcontinental tour.

This confirms the opinion of Columnist E. V. Durling who believes that the most stylish women by cities are: 1, New York; 2, Dallas, Tex.; 3, San Francisco; 4, Washington, D. C.; 5, Chicago; 6, Hollywood.

We must agree. Both the reader and Mr. Durling are wrong.

On any expert listing of fashionably garbed women, Boston belongs at the top.

It is true, our wives, mothers and daughters may not be so expensively clad as Hollywood motion picture actresses.

They may not favor some of the extreme designs of New York or the startling headgear of Chicago.

But they always dress with taste. And that is the really important thing.

MOTHERS EVERYWHERE

will understand the sorrow of Mrs. Nora Connolly, whose picture accompanies this editorial.

Yesterday Mrs. Connolly's son, with three hundred other men and officers of the Marine Corps Reserve, left Boston for active duty at Quantico, Va.

The train was pulling out of the station as the photographer approached, and Mrs. Connolly was waving goodbye to her boy.

Wherever and whenever there has been war or the threat of war, scenes like this have testified to the fact that it is mother who is always the real sufferer.

A MOTHER WEEPS
For Her Departing Boy

There are no thrills, no adventure, no glory in armed conflict for mother.

She stays at home, knows the empty hours of loneliness, the agony of anxious waiting.

Yet Mrs. Connolly has much for which to be thankful. We have no war in America, and, if the prayers of millions are answered, we will have none.

Mrs. Connolly's son and thousands of other mothers' sons are training for defense. There is every reason to believe they will come home a year hence stronger and healthier than ever.

Still one thing is certain. If mothers were the world's rulers, war would be unknown, not only in America but everywhere else.

That is true of all mothers—British mothers, German mothers and all other nations' mothers.

On The Side -:- -:- By E. V. DURLING

I SAW "Arise, My Love" with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland last night. Very entertaining. Milland looks like another Clark Gable to me. He should grow a moustache. Seems this tends to make a film star more of a heart-throb with the female trade, but I don't know why. Part of "Arise, My Love" dealt with the sinking of the Athenia. This was interesting to me as I was in the submarine zone on the Ile de France when the Athenia was sunk. We had passed over the same waters which were then jammed with Nazi submarines. The Ile de France was the first passenger ship of the belligerent nations to venture through the submarine zone after war was declared. Why the Nazis didn't toss a torpedo at this ship remains a mystery. They certainly must have seen it pass by.

COLUMNIST APPLAUDS THEIR PERFORMANCE
Ray Milland and Claudette Colbert in "Arise, My Love"

DOES your mother-in-law live with you? How are you doing? Well, never mind, it's none of my business anyway. Just thought I would tell you that Clark Shaughnessy, football coach of Stanford University, has his mother and his wife's mother living with him and says the two are great company and he would be very lonesome without them . . . There's been another addition to the "how to" field of literature. This is "How to Keep It a Secret If You Are Newlyweds." General idea of these instructions is not to be too polite to your wife in public and to snap at her now and then. This, the author of the aforementioned says, will make people believe you have been married a long time . . . Now women can have their cake and their figures too. Hearty eaters and lazy females can be slender without sacrifice or effort. It is all done with machines which not only take off weight but take it off specified places in the feminine figure.

WILL the United States have a feminine President during our time? I wouldn't be surprised. I have heard that both Dorothy Thompson and Clare Boothe are seriously considering running for President in 1944 on special tickets. If women in general agreed it was time the United States had the benefit of feminine governmental direction it might be difficult to beat their candidate. In Illinois 54 per cent of the voters are women. In California 51 per cent. In Montana 53 per cent and Indiana 52 per cent. When Sinclair Lewis was told his wife, Dorothy Thompson might run for President he said: "That's fine. If she's elected I will be the first gentleman of Washington and can write a 'My Day' column."

COMPETITION for position of hostess in the U. S. Army is terrific. That's understandable. Being an Army hostess at a salary of $2600 a year and living quarters is not such a bad job. A feminine client has written in asking if there are going to be any U. S. Navy hostesses. "I think being a hostess on a battleship would be awfully exciting," says this young woman.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, Friday: Yesterday saw the beginning of the White House social season. The minister from Costa Rica and his wife came to call for the first time. An interpreter came from the State Department because I am a little hesitant about my Spanish and they are a little hesitant about their English.

The minister from Thailand and his wife came later, and I was interested to find that their excellent English was acquired in one case by going to school in England, and in the other by attending an American missionary school.

They told me their two little boys are going to the Friends School in Washington and really they had learned native English before coming to this country, they were finding a little difficulty in their American school.

These diplomatic children have to make adjustments to so many different countries and so many different languages that I often marvel at their adaptability. When it is done successfully however, it gives them a great advantage over a child whose knowledge is limited to one country and one language.

FOUR MORE young people came to tea, and in the evening the President and I received some of the people who had worked in the women's division of the Democratic National Committee in Washington. After that we saw some newsreels which gave excerpts from various campaign speeches, and now I hope to have seen and heard the last of the campaign. There is work to be done for everyone and I hope that we will all settle down to do it.

Miss Thompson and I took the plane to New York City this morning. Mr. Walter O'Keefe drove in from the airport with us to tell me about a plan which he wants to carry out, and I was especially impressed by one thing he said: "I have always wanted to do something significant for which I received no remuneration. I think this plan will accomplish something really worth while, so I am prepared to give my services."

It is interesting that nearly all of us have that desire when we are conscious of ability to contribute something of value to our neighbors and friends, and the opportunity offers itself.

I managed to sandwich in a little Christmas shopping before going to lunch at the Rockefeller Lunch Club to present to Miss Jacqueline Cochran the Harmon trophy, which she has won for the third time.

She is such an attractive person and so young that it is hard to realize how many experiences and hours she has had in the air, and it is fascinating to hear her talk about it.

The Campbell Girl

You ladies need not wait. The position as social secretary has just been filled—admirably!

TUGWELL TO RETURN TO CAPITAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—The priority committee of the National Defense Council, which has taken into its fold the manufacturing of machine-tools and commercial planes, will make a similar announcement about steel within the next few days . . . Major de Seversky, whose new patents concerning stratosphere bombing-planes were announced last week, cannot understand why complete descriptions were published in the newspapers. He will request the government to withhold such information on defense patents from now on . . . Rex Tugwell, one of the President's original Brain Trust, will return to Washington soon. His new post will be that of Chief Forester.

JEAN ARTHUR

HENRI BERNSTEIN, French playwright, entertained a charming visitor who asked him many questions—about his work, his plays and his travels . . . "Frankly, Mr. Bernstein," the visitor asked, "what's your reaction to all of it?" . . . "I can only tell you this," the playwright advised. "You must try to be famous, sometime. It's fun," . . . The newspapers as yet have not reported the suicide, by hanging, of Joe Greco—the barber who used to shave Enrico Caruso. Greco ended his life last week in the Tombs prison, while awaiting trial for shooting his brother-in-law . . . Floyd Odlum, utilities man, helped support the President's campaign for re-election . . . Germaine Aussey, French screen star who married John Ringling North and spent her honeymoon touring with the circus, returned Wednesday and announced: "I now speak four languages — French, Italian, English and Circus."

JUST BEFORE Producer Cohn made "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" Jean Arthur pleaded for the role opposite Gary Cooper in that movie. "If I give you this role," Cohn told her, "you'll do what the others do. It'll make you famous and you'll want more than your $500 a week." Miss Arthur ridiculed such a suggestion. She got the job, became a star and held out for $25,000 a picture—which Cohn finally paid . . . The same thing happened before "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington"; Miss Arthur pleaded for the part, Cohn said: "You'll want more money later," she got the job—and demanded $50,000 for the next picture. Cohn secured a sweeping injunction, restraining her from working for any other company, or appearing on the stage, screen or radio. He was congratulated by all other producers for stabilizing, at last, the contracts of picture stars. "So you know what happened then?" Cohn now says. "I paid her the $50,000."

DURING the last nine days of the campaign, the employees in the Washington office of the CIO all wore "Vote for Roger Babson" buttons. Before John L. Lewis had made his speech in support of Willkie, all these employees had been wearing Roosevelt buttons. After the CIO leader's speech, his brother, Dan Lewis, arrived at the Washington office, saw the New Deal buttons, and demanded that they be replaced immediately with Willkie buttons. The employees refused, and finally they and Dan Lewis compromised—Babson buttons.

ON ELECTION NIGHT, at the headquarters of the Dem. Committee, four of the official group were disconsolate at the returns from New York State. Chairman Ed Flynn, his law-partner, Goldwater; Charles Michelson, and the Committee's counsel, Sol Rosenblatt, were saddened at the realization that the Democratic vote was much less than the Republican vote. "This is awful," they groaned, "losing the State—and its 47 electoral votes" . . . But then someone reminded them that they had forgotten all about the American Labor Party. A call was put through to AFL headquarters—and only then did these officials learn that Roosevelt was leading in N. Y., because, even at that early hour, the AFL had 241,000 votes for the President.

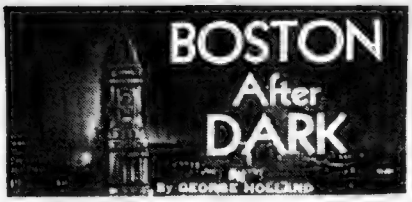
CAMILO ALDAO is returning to the Argentine, there to accept a post which is similar to Nelson Rockefeller's job here—in charge of Pan-American relations. Aldao's father had represented Argentina at the first Pan-American conference ever held . . . Sammy Renick, the jockey, walloped a bandleader at the Famous Door on Monday night, when he thought his colleague, Jockey Don Meade, was being abused. It was all a mistake, but the bandleader's wounds still haven't healed.



THE LONG-SHOT CHANCE EXISTS that Tommy Maren just possibly has turned up the greatest conga-rumba-hot-sweet band in the nation . . . Socarras is the name of the dusky maestro who proved a revelation at last night's premiere . . . He heads the most versatile unit any Boston nightclub has held, and as a soloist, Socarras blows a shoa-enuf magical flute . . . But forget the flute . . . The tricks he plays while going out of the world on a saxophone would be sufficient to rate him with the masters.

THE SOCARRAS UNIT smacks of class, moreover . . . It has a handsome pianist who beats the box with the suavity of a Duchin and the technique of a Reichman . . . Way over yonder in the southeast corner, a kewpy of a lad on a clarinet, a fiddle, a pair of ghourds and other instruments . . . There are two fiddles in the string section, but before you can say abracadabra the fiddlers twain are breathing on French horns and twanging guitars.

SOCARRAS PLAYS HIS "HOT" FLUTE over the notes of "Sentimental Over You," and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" . . . He gets sizzling with a smooth rendition of "Stardust" and switches to the first McCoy rambat these straining ears have yet heard in Boston . . . He holds a single note on his saxophone for two full choruses of a jive tune whose name escapes us . . . He is marvellous.

TONIGHT AT the stroke of 8 by the Copley Plaza clock, Socarras will sound an opening fanfare in honor of Eddie "The Old Sarge" Mack . . . It will be a discriminating and far-reaching audience assembled at the feet of this unknown maestro, who, by the way, is a Cuban Negro . . . Come 8:30, and this lad should be "made"—as far as Boston goes . . . We hope that Mr. Maren has Socarras tightly tied to a contract . . . Because among the Broadway refugees who will be present at the Mack dinner are Mr. Will Duffy, erstwhile co-boss of the New York Cotton Club, and his musical mentor, Bobby Sawyer . . . Bobby is a colored lad who attended Boston Latin School when Elliott Norton was a schoolboy. (In fact, they were classmates) . . . Mr. Sawyer has written the scores of all the Cotton Club shows . . . And he and Mr. Dubbs are planning another.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Former Governor Curley is home after a two-day sojourn in Washington, and an audience—by request, or summons—with FDR . . . If the former Governor will talk, Boston may learn whether he has decided to hold a New Deal post for six or seven months before plunging into a campaign for the Boston mayoralty . . . (We still adhere to our prophecy that Joe Kennedy will take the chairmanship of the national defense council.)

KATHLEEN "KITTY" BRANDO and Managing Director Arthur Race of the Hotel Copley-Plaza will debate Kitty's imaginative plans for the Copley-Plaza's underground Swiss Room . . . La Brando thinks the famous hostelry's subterranean premises is an ideal location for a swanky, but lively, nightspot . . . Ella Fitzgerald opens Monday at the Brunswick Bermuda Terrace . . . And—keeping to the Copley-Plaza area—the Murray Twins are chortling gay melodies, with the aid of a new electrical contraption which tacks onto a piano and produces organ sounds—at the Copley Square's Grille where business is excellent.

AFTERPIECE—Romo Vincent, Janet Carroll, Socarras, Ranny Weeks, Mickey Alpert, Billy Payne, Gene

HER EYES ON SWISS ROOM AT COPLEY-PLAZA
"Kitty" Brando Likes Location for Nightspot

Autry, Joe E. Brown, The Three Stooges, Doris Abbott, Lew Conrad, Marilynn Duke, Otto Eason, The Six Dennatis, The Beachcomber Conga-Rumba dancers, the Mayfair, Cocoanut Grove and Versailles choruses—all these and more at the Mack dinner tonight should make the show the greatest of the year in the Boston sector.

RODDY McDOWALL ARRIVES IN U. S.

By Louella O. Parsons

William Wyler

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—I've just talked over the telephone to Roddy McDowall, 12-year-old English lad who is on his way to Hollywood to play the very important role of Huw in "How Green Was My Valley." What a human interest story there is behind this youngster, who, with his mother and 13-year-old sister just arrived in this country from bomb-racked London. In a charming British accent he said: "I can't tell you, Miss Parsons, how thrilled I am to get this wonderful opportunity in such a great role right after our arrival. I made 16 films in London but nothing so important as How Green Was My Valley with Mr. Darryl [illegible] and Mr. William Wyler." (Honestly, that is the way he says it.)

She'll play herself—a sophisticated career girl—a part she should know without even having to study the script.

MRS. EDNA GLADNEY, heroine of Texas because of the marvelous work she's done in behalf of homeless children, is going to Hollywood. Of course, the chief reason for the trip is to help make suggestions for "Blossoms in the Dust," based on her own children's home. But Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon, stars of the M-G-M picture, personally are going to see her visit isn't all business. It is Mrs. Gladney's first trip to Movietown and Greer and Walter want to make sure she sees the sights. Some time ago when Father Flanagan went to Hollywood to supervise "Boys Town," he was one of our most popular visitors. So everyone is looking forward to meeting this charming woman who has done so much for orphans.

BLONDIE

But Elmo's No Gentleman!

What Has Happened:

A FIFTH COLUMN blitzkrieg is under way in England led by a mysterious AJAX who officially and secretly is considered more menacing than Stuka bombers to the defense of the realm. The confessed treason of MARA, ace English spy, followed by the sensational murder of CAPT. HUGH KENLEY, have put SIR JOHN SANDERSON, British Intelligence chief, in a desperate quandary.

SIR JOHN'S ward, beautiful BRINDA DUNCAN, had given a lift in her car to a limping stranger whom she mistook for an Englishman. But he was a Nazi parachutist and, when leaving Brinda's car, he shot Capt. Kenley . . . Brinda met LIEUT. RICHARD MALDEN, a former beau, when both were looking through photos in the Intelligence Office's "rogues' gallery." He told her that his engagement to GLADYS, daughter of Lord and Lady Mountwyn, is to be announced that evening.

Brenda had none too pleasant memories of glittering Gladys as a schoolmate. But Sir John and his ward go to the Mountwyn party, where Gladys is proudly showing off the rapier-like Russian, PRINCE VASLAV, whom she has just ordered to "come along" . . .

MATA HARI'S Daughter

2 MAURICE DEKOBRA — LEYLA GEORGIE

WITH a gesture that was half a bow and half a deprecatory shrug, Prince Vaslav obeyed Gladys.

Dick and Brinda were left with each other.

"What were you doing a moment ago?" asked Brnda.

"I?" He smiled vaguely. "Oh! I was counting the people. Before you and Colonel Sanderson came, there were one hundred and nine. You made one hundred eleven—the General and his wife make one hundred and thirteen."

"Don't you ever think of anything but things—well, like that?"

"Indeed I do," said Dick Malden, "when there is anything else worth thinking about. Just at the moment, for instance, I'm thinking that you look lovelier now than you ever did in mourning."

"Perhaps you'd find it fun to go on with your counting the guests."

"No, it doesn't interest me any more. By the way, if you find the fellow you're looking for in the Intelligence files—"

"Now I see, I'm sorry to confess. And you . . . did you find your bogey-man?"

"Oh, it was a perfectly natural short circuit. But that's how I was almost blown up, or become suspicious. I rather envy you as a spy or a Fifth Columnist under every retort.

"They really aren't that thick?"

"They're enough. Frankly, I wouldn't care for your guardian's job. He's inherited too much trouble from the blindness of his predecessors."

"That's serious for England, isn't it?"

"Deuce! serious," said the young lieutenant gravely. "But I suppose we'll muddle through somehow . . . We always have. Personally I've almost reached the jittery stage where I suspect all foreigners."

KIN TO ROYALTY

"Just who is this Prince Vaslav?" asked Brinda.

For a moment her thought, Malden smiled. "You need to worry about Vaslav. He's above suspicion. Kin to royalty and all that sort of thing. . . . He's a nephew of the Grand Duke, you know—really in line for the Russian throne, if there ever is a Russian throne again. But he's death on the Nazis—hates them. Handsome duffer, what?"

Brinda was forced to agree. "I don't think I ever saw a handsomer man—of his type. But I don't like him. Does he do anything besides look handsome?"

"Well, I suppose you might call him a sort of society entertainer, except that he'd be greatly insulted if you did. He backed a Mayfair night club, but it was a bust. Now, if you're going to give a big party or some sort of war benefit, you call the Prince in to run things. He's really a very clever chap. First-rate fencer . . . crack shot . . . does amazing tricks with cards . . . knows a tolerable lot about art and music and all that sort of rot. Oh, yes, dancing, too. They say he's a regular Nijinsky—in fact, he's supposed to be back of one of these ultra-ultra ballet schools—very Russian, all for art and so on."

"He must be on good terms with a lot of big people," said Brinda thoughtfully.

"Bickers of 'em! But no one takes him seriously—or at least I don't imagine anyone does."

However, watching Lady Gladys as she returned from greeting the most recent guests, it seemed to Brinda that the Mountwyn heiress was taking the handsome prince very seriously.

For a moment, Malden's expression indicated that he might have noticed it too. But the look vanished quickly as Gladys greeted him with a gay smile and a murmured apology.

"My dears, Vassie has just given me the most wonderful idea! A blackout dance!"

"A blackout dance?" Dick frowned.

"Exactly. We'll get the dancing under way, then have an air-raid signal and turn the lights out. Vassie says we can get a very good signal on a clarinet."

"Sounds a trifle gruesome to me," commented Dick.

"Nonsense!" responded Gladys. "It's all in fun!"

"Perhaps Lieut. Malden is right," interposed Vaslav.

Gladys lifted an imperious chin. "I'm quite sure it's a splendid idea," she said crisply. "Come, Vaslav, you'll have to explain that air raid signal detail to the clarinetist."

"I still think it's gruesome," emphasized Dick as he guided Brinda through the crowd. "Somehow I can't share the prevalent delusion that this war is a joke."

"Nor I, Dick," said Brinda, thinking of the parachute spy, and of murdered Capt. Kenley.

Somewhere in their progress across the big room they became separated from Gladys and Vaslav. Then suddenly the hidden orchestra crashed into the opening bars of the dance hit of the day.

"That's for us," said Malden, and whirled Brinda into a rhumba. Then, after a few steps, "Jove, I'd forgotten how you dance!"

A MAN'S CRY!

"You forgot once before, didn't you?"

"Let's not bring that up," he said. "It reminds me of my misspent youth."

They were near a double window opening on a flower-filled terrace when the clarinet suddenly shrilled out a chromatic warning that sufficiently approximated the eerie wail of an air-raid siren. Instantly, the lights went out.

Brinda felt Dick's arm tighten. Involuntarily she pressed closer to him. A thrill swept her, sudden and impervious.

"Blackouts have their points," he said, his breath warm against her neck. "Listen, Brinda! I must tell you—"

A cry stopped him—a man's cry, hoarse and surprise. Then, the crisp, authoritative voice of Lord Mountwyn, rising above the muffled croon of the orchestra:

"Lights! Turn on the lights! Hurry—you fools! Lights!"

Brinda's hand clutched Dick's. "Something's wrong" she whispered with terrified conviction. "Something's desperately wrong!"

"We'll look," said Malden quietly.

She clutched his arm as he threaded his way through the dark toward the point from which Mountwyn's voice had come. Then the first lights flashed on, and Brinda knew that her panic was justified. Their host, red-faced and disheveled, was bending over a limp figure, sprawled on a lounge beside a terrace door.

"Lend a hand here, Lieutenant!" he snapped. "Colonel Sanderson has been stabbed!"

Ignoring Dick's restraining gesture, Brinda swept swiftly forward. At the sight of a dark stain on Sir John's shirt-bosom she was near crying out.

THE CIPHER

She knelt beside the prostrate figure of the Intelligence Chief. "Sandy, Sandy!" Her fingers searched the flaccid wrist. Having viewed sudden and violent death so recently, it was hard for her to believe the reassuring news conveyed by the strongly beating pulse.

"Sandy, dear," she pleaded. "Oh, please!" Some whisper of her feminine appeal reached the flagging consciousness of the wounded man. A faint smile twitched a corner of the stern, tired mouth.

"Look sharp, Mountwyn," he mumbled weakly, "he's after the cipher!"

Brinda scarcely heard the words—it was enough that he had spoken. People were beginning to gather around.

Ignoring D[illegible]'s restraining gesture, Brinda swept forward. She saw a dark stain on Sir John's shirt-bosom.

"Can't have this," barked Mountwyn. "Dick! Keep everyone away . . . Tell 'em Sir John had a stroke . . . Anything . . . Understand?"

"Perfectly."

"But Lord Mountwyn," protested Brinda, "I don't understand— How did this happen?"

"No time to go into that now . . . other things to worry about—plenty of 'em. For one thing, we mustn't let that fellow give us the slip . . . Have to lock the lodge gates . . . search the grounds. Dick! your Navy chums can help on that. Tell 'em to look sharp, though; we don't want anyone else hurt."

Mountwyn turned back to Brinda. "Buck up, child! Your guardian is hurt, but he isn't dead. Know any first aid?"

"A little."

"Splendid!" Mountwyn whipped out a handkerchief. "Make a tourniquet of this. Twist it round his arm—tight. That's the stuff. Now for his chest . . . Hmm . . . wicked but not so deep. Call a doctor."

"That's been done," Brinda answered promptly with her eyes on Sir John. "Dr. MacDonald will soon be here."

"Good! We'll have him in. Meantime, we'll have to get our man to bed . . . Carry him across the terrace into the west wing . . . Won't have to do a lot of explaining that way."

So swiftly that it seemed scarcely to have consumed a moment Brinda found herself hastening across the outer terrace—one of a small getaway bed cortege that included Mountwyn, Dick, a hastily summoned footman in resplendent livery, and the wounded Intelligence Chief.

Dick and the footman supported Sir John; Lord Mountwyn bustled ahead.

High in the starless autumn night an invisible plane droned menacingly. The distant hum of its motor mingled with a burst of music from the drawing room as Lady Mountwyn's guests, ignorant of the drama in their midst, resumed their dancing.

Brinda shivered. There seemed something symbolic about that hidden airplane. True it might be British . . . But the papers were already telling every day of enemy planes winging audaciously above England on observation missions, or daring to attack the mighty British fleet as it lay in anchorage. Few bombs had dropped from them yet, fewer than expected, but cargoes more deadly than bombs—spies and Fifth Columnists descending silently by parachute—were said to be preparing the way for deadlier things to come.

And, meanwhile, Britain made merry and danced—as Lord Mountwyn's guests were dancing tonight—as she herself had been dancing just a few minutes before.

"In here!" Mountwyn opened the door to a magnificently furnished bedroom. Gently, with no apparent effort, Dick lay Sir John's 180 pounds on the massive bed.

As his head touched the pillow, the Intelligence Chief opened his eyes. For a moment they were vague and puzzled. But suddenly they comprehended all. He attempted to sit up, then sank back with an involuntary exclamation of pain.

"Ah!" he said angrily. "The blighter knifed me." Then quickly to Mountwyn, "Don't tell me he got away with the—?"

"Afraid so," said Mountwyn. "But take it easy, Sir John. He can't have escaped."

Sir John groaned slightly. "Worse and worse," he sighed.

"We'll nab him," said Mountwyn confidently. "Nobody can get by the lodge gates—they've been locked. It's a twelve-foot wall and only last month I had two strands of American barbed wire strung along the top. Besides, it's well-lighted and the lights are on the lodge-gate circuit. Only the lodge keeper can put them out, and he didn't . . . No, whoever he is—he's still on the premises."

DEFENSE HIGHWAYS PLANNED

Plans for throwing the entire weight of organized motordom behind vigorous national defense efforts particularly in the building up of the nation's highway system to the standards demanded by modern military requirements—will be drafted at the 38th annual convention of the American Automobile Association to be held in Washington, D. C., Nov. 14-15.

With some four or five hundred delegates in attendance, representing the more than one million members of A. A. A. motor clubs in all parts of the country, the two-day session will be concentrated to a large extent on the impact of defense activities on motoring conditions and discussion of ways and means whereby the A. A. A. and its affiliated clubs can co-operate most effectively in defense efforts

PLAYS VITAL ROLE

"There is no question about the vital role that transportation plays in the national defense picture," declared Thos. P. Henry, president of the national motoring body, in a pre-convention statement. "We must explore every possible avenue which promises more efficient highway movement; we must urge speedy completion of necessary highway programs, and we must seek orderly and equitable highway finance programs in order that needed construction may go forward without delay."

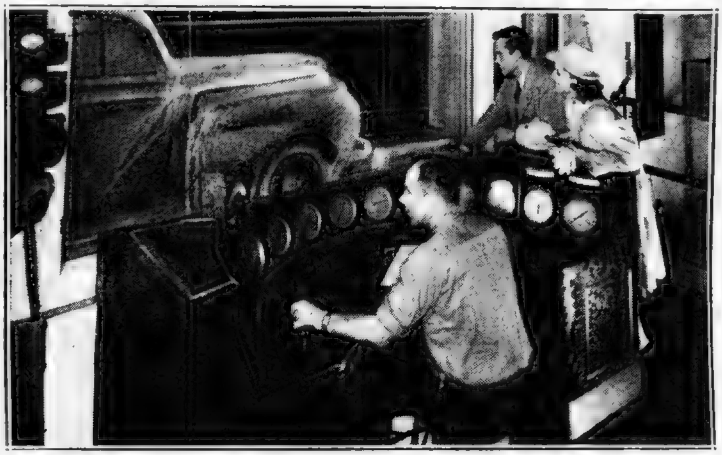
The future of travel in the Americas will be discussed by A. A. Berle, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State in an address to be delivered at a special Pan American luncheon [illegible] the first day of the convention.

EXPLAINS REPORT

Details of the work which must be done to bring the highway system into line with defense requirements will be outlined by John M. Carmody, Administrator, Federal Works Agency, who will explain to A. A. A. delegates findings of a special report on the subject [illegible] conducted by the Public Roads Administration.

In addition to national defense [illegible] the meeting will consider [illegible] measures for protecting vehicles in the interest of [illegible] decent appearance and [illegible] public welfare; [illegible] of traffic [illegible] of the [illegible] for major reforms in [illegible] procedure, protection [illegible] the [illegible] through [illegible] methods and a [illegible] adoption of [illegible]

MAN-MADE BLIZZARD TESTS 1941 CAR



WEATHER at its worst is punishing this new sedan in a test at the Ford experimental laboratory. Everything from cloudburst, fog, or sleet to a desert sandstorm can be created inside the weather tunnel. The engineer, sitting comfortably outside at the control panel takes readings on such conditions as "drag" of the car, air speed, temperature, humidity, engine speed, fuel consumption. Tests like these are important in designing cars that start easily and run well in any kind of weather.

DE SOTO PROMOTES F. H. WING

Appointment of Frank H. Wing as regional merchandising manager in Boston has been announced by L. C. Maurer, regional manager for the De Soto Division of Chrysler Corporation. He was previously district manager in the No. 1 district of Boston.

F. H. Wing

Prior to joining De Soto, Mr. Wing retailed cars in San Francisco, and followed this experience with operating his own business for six years in Newton, Mass.

As regional merchandising manager he will have charge of the De Soto promotional activities for the entire Boston region, which includes Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Finals in the national truck driving championship will be held next Wednesday with about 50 winners of state driving rodeos taking part. Elson Smith of Detroit will defend the national title he has held for two years.

Camden Motors Picks New Hudson As Top Car

Camden Motors, newly appointed Hudson dealer in Dorchester, has been servicing and selling motor cars since 1902.

Pat Camden said:

"In making my selection, and after considering all angles, my choice was Hudson, because the 1941 Hudson cars have features not embodied in other cars, such as double-safety brakes, auto-poise, air-foam cushions, more luggage space and symphonic styling.'

Pat Camden

Associated with Pat Camden are his son Howard and Paul. They have a complete line of 1941 Hudson models on exhibit at the showroom, 450 Talbot ave.

In announcing this new dealer, F. A. Ordway, president and treasurer of the Henley Kimball Co., distributors of Hudson, said:

"We are more than pleased to be able to make a connection with Camden Motors, because they have always commanded the highest respect in their territory."

Chrysler Men Take To Field

District service representatives of the Chrysler Corporation have just returned to the field after an intensive course of instructions at Detroit.

This school covered in detail the changes and improvements in 1941 products and prepared these [illegible] specialists to conduct [illegible] technical schools to be held [illegible] the United States during the next 60 days.

G. C. Streckler, regional [illegible] in New England [illegible] five Boston meetings have been held for [illegible] Dodge-Plymouth, De Soto-Plymouth and Chrysler-Plymouth [illegible] and their service [illegible] 1941 service procedure. Ford Ready to Sell 1,185,000 New Cars

DEARBORN, Mich., Nov. 9 — Sale of 1,000,000 Fords, 150,000 Mercurys and 35,000 Lincolns during the 1941 model year is looked forward to by Ford Motor Co. H. S. Doss, general sales manager, said that "this represents a gain of 20 per cent over sales of Ford units during the 1940 model period."

Mr. Doss declared he saw no reason why the national defense program should interfere with normal production of motor cars. The country wants and needs new cars, he said, and the automobile plants are equipped to turn them out.

SALES HIT NEW HIGH

DETROIT, Nov. 9—Chevrolet retail sales in 1940, in exactly nine months and 20 days, have surpassed those for the entire calendar year of 1939, it was announced by William E. Holler, general sales manager.

The figure of the current year through Oct. 20, he said, is 814,951, as compared with 791,886 for the entire year of 1939.

The cumulative figure for the year 814,951 passenger car and truck sales compares with 586,656 sales made during the same period in 1939, Mr. Holler pointed out. This is a gain of 228,295 sales from Jan. 1 through Oct. 20, an advance of 38.9 per cent. He said:

"If we close this month at the pace set during the first 20 days—and there is every indication we may do so—then this will represent the greatest October sales figure in the history of Chevrolet."

Truck Group To Hear Rogers

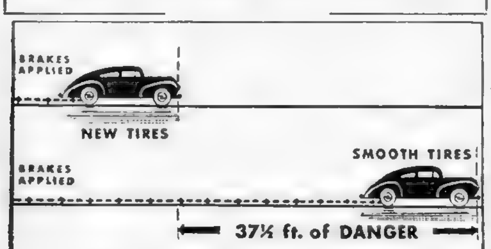
WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—John L. Rogers, commissioner of the motor carrier division of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will speak at the opening session of the seventh annual convention of the American Trucking Association in Los Angeles next Monday.

Keynote address at the convention will be delivered by Frederick C. Horner, an aide of the National Defense Advisory Commission and assistant to the chairman of General Motors.

Pontiac Sales Call For 60 Pct. Increase

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 9—D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of Pontiac, reports that regional and zone managers have filed requests for the balance of 1940 calling for an increase of 60 per cent in factory production over last year.

SMOOTH TIRES DANGEROUS



ONE OF THE most dangerous hazards to safe winter driving is the automobile with smooth tires. Traveling at a speed of 40 miles an hour, the car with good tires traveled 104½ feet before coming to a dead stop. At the same speed the same car with smooth tires traveled 142 feet before coming to a stop. The difference 37½ feet, is a danger gauntlet for pedestrians, other motorists and driver.

Prospect Hill can be reached by following Route 3A from the Fore River bridge in Quincy until reaching the first Howard Johnson stand. Turn left here and Prospect Hill is but a short distance away.

The development is under the guidance of the Gilbert-Varker Co., builders, and Albert Cole is in charge of the entire operation.

Every possible convenience is had at Prospect Hill and an additional advantage is the private beach and boating anchorage which goes with each home.

There are 19 completed houses at Prospect Hill with 16 more under construction and sales are very active.

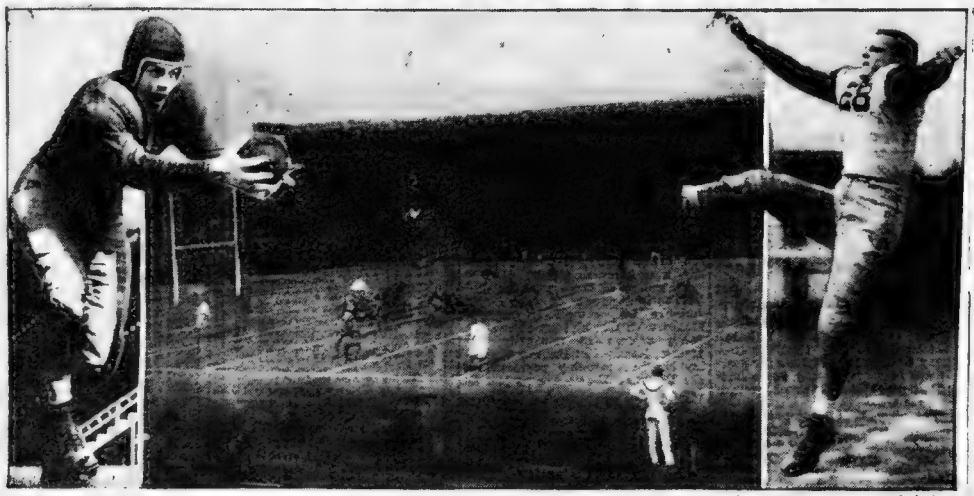
HARVARD MARCHES 45 YARDS TO SCORE

EVENING AMERICAN, SATURDAY, NOV. 9, 1940



QUAKER MEETING—Harvard-Penn aces, Frannie Lee and Francis Xavier Reagan, overshadow Franklin Field, Philadelphia, where teams clash this afternoon. Reagan was eclipsed two weeks ago in his duel with Michigan's Tom Harmon but promised to make up for it today. Penn was overwhelming favorite. Lee is the boy who ran kickoff 82 yards for touchdown against Dartmouth two weeks back.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 9—With 40,000 perspiring patrons in the stands and not a cloud in the skies, Pennsylvania, undefeated in Ivy League competition, played host to Harvard, victoryless in the same competition, here this afternoon.

The Quakers, with their star-spangled Francis Xavier Reagan triple-threat ace, were prohibitive favorites to win as easily as they did in the Harvard Stadium last fall when they triumphed 22 to 7.

Harvard started the game with its captain and bucking back, Joe Gilde, confined to the bench with influenza. Little Bill Brown started the Crimson leader in the fullback post.

FIRST PERIOD

Penn won the toss and chose to defend the west goal. Kaufman's kick was taken by Welsh, who ran it back from his 10 to his 34. Welsh went only a yard before Ayers stopped him. Kaufman was injured in the play and Harvard took time out. Play resumed with Kaufman staying in the game. A pass, Allen to Welsh, failed.

Reagan's quick kick was taken by Lee on Harvard's 22. Sprayer shoved through tackle for seven yards. Reagan took Sprayer's kick on his 30 and ran it back to his 11. A short pass by Kurzynsky gained five yards.

A reverse pass, Allen to Regan, gained 22 yards. Peabody recovered an Allen fumble and it was Harvard's ball on their 22 yard line. Brown moved up six yards on a spinner. Lee on a reverse made first down on Harvard's 42. Brown was stopped without gain. Sprayer on a reverse picked up five yards.

Reagan took MacKinney's kick on his 17 and carried it back to his 30. Reagan quick kicked for first down, the ball going over the boards on Harvard's 29. Lee on a reverse went around his left end for six yards. Sprayer off tackle was good for two yards. Brown picked down for a loss down to Harvard's 40. Brown's punt was good for three yards. Sprayer picked up two more, off tackle.

Mackinney kicked to the end zone and it was Penn's ball on the 20. Allen hit center for four yards. Reagan on a reverse picked up two yards. Lee took Reagan's kick from his 5-yard line and carried it back to his 42. Lee on a reverse went ten yards for a first down on Penn's 48. Sprayer stepped around right end for four yards.

Mackinney made a great catch of Sprayer's pass to run five more yards. Sprayer hit center for a first down on Penn's 37. Brown found a five-yard hole in the center of the Penn line. Welsh intercepted Sprayer's long pass, on the Penn 19, where he was downed by Kaufman for whom the pass was intended. Welsh picked up six yards off tackle.

An Allen to Reagan picked up two yards. Lee pulled down Reagan's kick on his 40 and brought it back to Penn 42. A pass, Sprayer to Brown, gave Harvard a first down on Penn's 26. Sprayer smashed off tackle for seven yards, as the quarter ended.

Harvard 0, Pennsylvania 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Dutcher replaced Welsh in the Penn backfield. Sprayer went through a hole and went all the way to Penn's 5-yard line for a first down. Sprayer carried again for a yard gain. Lee, taking the ball from Brown on a spinner, went wide around life end for a touchdown to climax a 42-yard advance. Vander Eb went in and kicked the extra point for Harvard.

Harvard 7, Pennsylvania 0.

Cornell Leads 'Hep' Harriers; Harvard Third

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (AP)—John L. Ayer, Cornell University senior who never ran a cross-country race until last year, led his team to the heptagonal championship over the five-mile Van Cortlandt Park course today, finishing with a sprint which gave him a 12-yard margin over Sidney Bull of Dartmouth.

En route to his time of 27:39.4 over the leaf-strewn flats and stony ridges, Ayer, a native of Syracuse, N. Y., stayed behind until the pack reached the three-mile mark.

Call to Colors Hits Pics Team

The shadow of war is weaving an uneasy spell over the Boston Olympic dressing room as the Pics prepare for tomorrow's tilt with the Bruins at the Arena.

Young Ray Fortin holds a notice in his pocket to appear at the Army Air Base Nov. 30 to start training. Fortin has been working on the Midget line of the Olympics with Frankie Spain and Gerry Desrosiers. He has shown blinding speed in practice, and his departure will be sorely felt by the clubmen.

Buddy Foster has already had one month of training with the Naval Air Corps, and expects to be called to Pensacola on Jan. 1. The former Dartmouth ace is, at present, pivoting the finest forward in Olympic history, featuring Dan Sullivan and Paul Guibord, and his absence will bust that line wide open.

ALL-AMERICA boxing, sponsored by the American-Record and with the co-operation of the Irish American A. C., will blaze forth at the Arena on Monday night . . . There will be bouts for novices as well as in the open classes . . . It should be one of the best shows of its kind ever held in this city.

TOM KANALY

Amateur boxing has done much to bring back the ring game in this city . . . Graduates of the All-American tournament like George Martin, Salvatore Bartollo, Johnny Shkor and Abe Denner have been making names for themselves in the professional ring . . . The committee in charge of the All-American tournament once more decided to have classes for novices through the New England finals . . . These novice matches do much to develop new talent, and also to furnish the spectators with action and laughs.

Youngsters who wish to take part in the All-American tournament should send their entries to Tom Kanaly, Arena, St. Botolph st. . . . The tournament is open to any registered amateur boxer in New England.

There will be four sets of trial bouts at the Arena . . . They will be followed by the New England finals at the Garden on December 9, the All-Eastern finals at the Garden on December 19, and the grand national finals at the Garden on January 27 . . . The class of the amateur boxers from all sections of the United States will sweep into action in the grand national finals.

Gene Driscoll chairman of the boxing committee of the New England A. A. U., has already suggested that winners in the All-America tournament automatically qualify for the national A. A. U. championships . . . It should be unneccessary for youngsters who win All-America titles to take part in A. A. U. trial bouts, according to Driscoll.

Joe Louis, who will meet Al McCoy at the Garden on December 16 at a Goodwin A. C. show, will be in Boston training during the All-America tournament, and is expected to attend some of the bouts . . . Louis came up out of the ranks of the amateurs to become world's heavyweight champion . . . Joe won the A. A. U. light heavyweight championship.

Harvard Takes Sample of Reagan's Playing

THE SCHEDULE makers have not shown much consideration for Dick Harlow's Harvard eleven. Harvard was tossed against Tommy Harmon and the powerful Michigan eleven before most of the players were in the best of physical condition. Harvard's football squad did not report until September 15, and was not at the height of its game for Michigan.

Harvard showed improvement against Dartmouth, Army and Princeton. The Army team that Harvard held to a tie was good enough to give Notre Dame its hardest battle of the season, only losing by a count of 7 to 0.

It was unfortunate that the Penn game was arranged for this time of the season. Just when it begins to look as if Harvard might go places in its closing games it finds Penn and Frank Reagan in its path.

Reagan was outplayed by Harmon in the Penn-Michigan game, but still rates as one of the greatest of backfield stars.

The great public interest in football teams is, of course, centered on the Michigan-Minnesota game. This should be one of the most thrilling contests of the season. Minnesota has displayed a terrific winning drive in all of its games, and it will make a mighty bid to stop Harmon and his Michigan playmates. I am still stringing along with Michigan to win due to Harmon's ability to come through when the chips are down.

Items From My Private Notebook

CONGRESSMAN John W. McCormack will attend the testimonial dinner to Sergeant Eddie Mack at the Copley Plaza tonight . . . The committee in charge of the dinner reports it is still possible to secure tickets . . . George Holland and George Clark have arranged one of the finest floor shows ever put on in Boston as a special feature of the dinner.

The floor show will be followed by dancing . . . There will be no speeches . . . Sergeant Eddie Mack will be introduced by Frank Ryan and promises to limit his remarks to 500 words . . . Mack can use 500 words talking about a horse he likes.

Jack Sharkey will attend the dinner . . . Billy Duffy, former manager of Primo Carnera and Jack Dempsey's second in the Sharkey bout and also in the second Tunney bout in Chicago, came in by plane from New York for the Mack testimonial.

A large party of horsemen will come down from Rockingham to attend the dinner . . . Joe Sullivan, who prints the programs at the race tracks, donated the printing to the Mack dinner so as to help make the affair the big success it deserves to be.

Zacatea and Bit O' Green, with a $1,172.60 payoff, gave daily double players something to cheer about.

N. H. Rifle Teams File for Shoot

New Hampshire organizations are becoming increasingly active in planning for the mammoth William Randolph Hearst Citizen Marksmanship Competition which will highlight the coming winter indoor shooting season under the sponsorship of the Boston American-Record.

Among the latest Granite State teams to report in are the Piscataqua R. and R. club of Portsmouth, N. H., and the Pemigewasset Rifle Club of Lincoln, N. H.

N. H. ENTERS STRONG TEAM

These two organizations are among the foremost shooting clubs in New England. They, together with the several other teams already entered from New Hampshire, plus those many others which are making immediate plans to enter, assure New Hampshire one of the strongest team entries of the many New England states.

Secretary Walter B. Redden, 119 Crescent Way, Portsmouth, filed the entry of the Piscataqua R. & R. Club, while Secretary L. A. Conant of Pollard rd., Lincoln, entered the Pemigewasset Rifle Club team.
